Tests and displays the hard disk drive's SMART (Self-Monitoring Analysis and Reporting Technology) status, which allows you to check the health status of the hard disk drive.

Note: The test only runs when the target hard disk drive supports the SMART technology. Note: If the hard disk drive is in RAID mode, it's SMART status can not be got.

The user can program the DAC input codes, device configuration bits, and

I2C address bits to the non-volatile memory (EEPROM) by using I2C<sup>TM</sup>Compatible interface commands. The non-volatile memory feature enables the DAC device to hold the DAC input codes during power-off time, allowing the DAC outputs to be available immediately after power-up.
